

As an NRES student you are required to take summer field experience (NRE 320) in the summer after your sophomore year (60 credit hours and above). This is necessary to ensure that you have time for your required internship or research experience, and because it is a prerequisite for the capstone course (NRE471) you will take in your final semester. If you are scheduled to take NRE 320 and for some reason think you cannot, then you are required to seek approval by filling out the form below and getting it signed by your faculty advisor and the Director of Undergraduate Studies.
